Seven lessons of 55 minutes, timed for 52 minutes, plus a final-task assessment.

Name: _____ Class: _____

Key question: Is the biggest city always the capital?

Write on this sheet, or in your notebook. Answer keys are always visible on the official pages. Make your own bristol flashcards. If you have already studied The Capital Trap, do not copy those exercises again: use the short recap, then the new work (Washington, D.C., the Commonwealth, the debate, the final task).

Lesson 1. Water first, cities next

The engraving: where, when, which building represents political power?

Explain: “Transport shaped the map, but politics shaped the capitals.”

Two verbs in the passive in the text: _____ _____

Locate five places, with five different expressions:

Lesson 2. The Capital Trap

Inès’s mistake, in one sentence:

A French example of the trap, or of a capital that is also the biggest city:

Precise comparatives (2020 census figures are on the website):

Los Angeles is more than _____ times as big as Sacramento.

Houston is more than _____ as big as Austin.

Albany is nowhere near as _____ as New York City.

Three sentences comparing two French cities:

Lesson 6. Debate

The question: Should a capital be the biggest city? My role: _____

My three arguments, with an example each:

On the one hand… On the other hand… My opinion after the vote:

Lesson 7 and final task

My option: A (podcast) / B (article). US capital: _____ Commonwealth capital: _____

Part	My notes (key words only for the oral)
Introduction: the question
Capital 1 (USA): when, who, why
Capital 2 (Commonwealth): when, who, why
Comparison
My opinion and conclusion

To get a good mark, I must: compare one US capital and one Commonwealth capital; give dates, the people who decided and the reasons; use complex comparatives, the passive and connectors; give and justify my opinion; for the oral, speak from five key words and pronounce the names correctly.
