Sounding natural at the workshop

De la phrase de classe à la phrase de l'atelier

Situation	En classe juste, un peu raide	Entre collègues à l'atelier	Avec le client ou le fournisseur M. Costa ou Triumph, à Hinckley
1 Ne pas connaître une référence	I do not know the part number.	I haven't got that number on me. I'll look it up.	I'm afraid I don't have that reference here. May I check the catalogue and call you back?
2 Faire répéter un numéro de pièce	Can you repeat the part number, please?	Sorry, what was that number again?	Could you go through the reference once more, a little more slowly, please?
3 Faire patienter au téléphone	Please wait a minute.	Give me a second, I'm just checking the list.	Would you mind holding for a moment while I check that with the workshop?
4 Demander de préciser	I do not understand. Can you explain, please?	Do you mean the left-hand pads or the right-hand ones?	Could you confirm whether that price is for one set or for both calipers?
5 Refuser poliment un délai	I cannot accept this delay. It is too long.	Five days is tight for the customer. We should let him know.	I'm afraid five working days may be too long for our customer. Is an earlier dispatch possible?
6 Être débordé	I am very busy at the moment.	I've got my hands full with the T120. Can it wait ten minutes?	I'm currently with another vehicle. Could I come back to you shortly?
7 Épeler une référence	The part number is T2017592.	It's T2017592, the chain kit.	That's T as in Triumph, two, zero, one, seven, five, nine, two.
8 Confirmer une commande	I want to order these parts.	Right, let's place the order.	I can confirm the order for the five items we discussed. We will also confirm it by email.
